THE CIRCLEVILLE HERALD

FIFTIETH YEAR. NUMBER 128 — CIRCLEVILLE, OHIO, THURSDAY, JUNE 1, 1933

PRESIDENT OF C.C.C. OF A. DISCLOSES OPTIMISTIC PLANS OF HIS COMPANY

Three 8-hour Shifts Planned by Paepke in Effort to Provide More Work, Following Administration Program; Increase in Wages Also Contemplated

PLANS TO COVER ENTIRE ORGANIZATION

Shipments Increasing With New High Prices; Repeal of Eighteenth Amendment Would Aid Company, He Declares

Several important changes in the set-up of the Container Corporation of America were forecast, Thursday, in a communication from Walter P. Paepke, president of the organization.

The local plant is expected to be included in the move.

Mr. Paepke announced that in order to cooperate with the administration at Washington in creating a wider distribution of employment the company's mills are being placed on a basis of three 8-hour shifts instead of two 12-hour shifts prevailing heretofore. At the same time wages are being increased an average of approximately 30 per cent in order to substantially offset the cut in working hours of employes. This is resulting in many more men being put to work at the company's various plants.

"Container Corporation has shown an important increase in volume at higher prices," Mr. Paepke declared. He added that the effect of this betterment upon earnings could not be foretold as yet because of a wage advance and rising raw material costs.

SHIPMENTS GAINING

"May shipments of our corporation were approximately 36 per cent above April totals and nearly 30 per cent over the corresponding month last year. All paper machines recently in use," Mr. Paepke said, "have been operated practically 100 per cent, and it is planned to put additional machines in service during June, if present volume is maintained. Five paper machines of the company have not operated at any time during the last four years, and it is possible that two of these will be started this month."

In order to offset the rise in some raw material costs the Container Corporation's selling prices have been advanced several times during the last 60 days, with most paperboard products up about 30 per cent in this period. The company is protected on many of its raw materials and operating supplies up to and beyond the end of the year.

LOOKS TO REPEAL

Mr. Paepke stated that only a small part of the betterment in business was traceable directly to the legalization of beer, but that it was probable that a fair amount was indirectly due to this cause. He added that the company stood to benefit considerable more if the Eighteenth amendment should be repealed. "Improved volume," he said, "is evident in practically the entire line of Container Corporation products." While earnings of the company should be helped by the gain in orders Mr. Paepke said it would be premature to attempt to state the extent of improvement until May figures are completed.

No elaboration on Mr. Paepke's statement was made at the local plant. Two weeks ago a report from the plant said business was improving but no definite orders concerning three 8-hour shifts have as yet been received. The plant now has a number of men working eight hours while some are on duty nine, 10, 11 and 12 hours. There are about 135 on the company's payroll here.

CONVICTS FACE DEATH CHARGE

War Veteran Slain In Gun Battle; Bad Lands Hunted Today.

LANSING, Kas., June 1.—Hills and sagebrush of the Oklahoma "bad lands" today concealed the hideout of eleven desperate felons, eight of them killers, who escaped from the Kansas penitentiary, leaving a trial of kidnapings and murder in their flight for freedom.

Police, deputy sheriffs and vigilantes from two states were combing the sage brush area of northeastern Oklahoma in a concerted search for the rendezvous to which the two groups of convicts are believed to have fled. The territory where the search centers has long been a hideaway for bandits and criminals.

Highways and roads throughout the area were being guarded by squads of police who were well-armed and under orders to shoot to kill in an encounter. Authorities in a wide area of Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas and Missouri likewise were prepared to intercept the fugitives in their flight.

VETERAN MURDERED

The murder of Policeman Otto L. Durkee, 42 year old World War veteran, who was shot and killed in Chetopa, Kas., in a gun battle with unidentified assailants was the work of one band of convicts, in the opinion of authorities.

That both detachments of fugitives are well stocked with arms and ammunition was confirmed by the six victims, three of them women, who were kidnaped by the felons and later released.

Warden Kirk Prather and two penitentiary guards who were released near Welch, Okla., fifteen miles from the scene of Durkee's, murder, said the criminals have shotguns, rifles and pistols. Some of the smaller weapons were smuggled into the prison twine mill before the break, but the rifles and guns were snatched from penitentiary guards whom the convicts disarmed while holding Prather hostage.

Adkins is listed as having taken a 10 per cent slash in the county's share of his salary.

The same reduction was ordered the first of the year for all appointive officers, by the county commissioners, but could not be forced upon electives. The Judge, however, is listed as having taken no voluntary reduction in his salary coming from the state.

All the judges of the district court of appeals have refunded parts of their pay, it is reported.

Fifty-nine common pleas judges and seven appelate judges are listed as taking no reduction.

MANY SEEKING EAGLESON JOB; TASK IS FACED

Applications Studied for First Time at Wednesday Meeting

OTHER JOBS OPEN

Re-consideration of School Head Declined

The task of selecting the best available man for the superintendency of Circleville public schools now faces the board of education. The board met Wednesday evening for its first meeting since a vote of the members rejected Supt. J. O. Eagleson and found numerous applications for the position.

Some school men well known here have applied for the appointment while applications have been received from educators from various parts of the state. It is rumored, but unconfirmed, that applications have been received by the board from several Pickaway-co school superintendents.

PLAN CAREFUL STUDY

The board of education plans to carefully scrutinize all applications and to make a thorough inventigation before Mr. Eagleson's successor is named.

While many applications have been received for the superintendent's job a larger number are seeking the positions now held by Charles F. Hax, English, dramatics and journalism teacher, and Ralph Hite, commercial teacher, both of whom have resigned.

Two grade school positions must also be filled before the new term, Mrs. Robert Bower and Mrs. Richard Wasson both leaving their schools.

COVERS MORE GROUND

The superintendency of Circleville schools for the 1933-34 term will be a more difficult position than in recent years since the job of grade supervisor held by E. L. Daley has been abolished for economy's sake. The principal, E. I. Gephart, and the new superintendent will handle their work and that of the grade supervisor, too.

It is reported an effort was made, at the Wednesday evening meeting, to have the board reconsider its action in rejecting Mr. Eagleson's application but it failed to gain any headway.

FOUR TO ASK JUSTICE POST

E. C. Friece To Face Heavy Opposition For Job; W. B. Cady Files.

A hot contest over the office of justice of peace for Circleville-twp was looming Thursday with four men already possessing petitions and several others reported preparing to toss their well known fedora's into the ring.

To date, Harry E. Weill, clerk of the board of elections, has issued papers to E. C. Friece, incumbent justice of peace; J. M. Trimble, Oscar C. Root and Clarence Robison. Friece and Trimble have been mentioned before but the names of Root and Robison are new in the race.

A scrap is also in evidence for Circleville-twp constable with Oscar Woeber, incumbent, to be opposed by at least one other man, Floyd Shaw, E. Franklin-st, now preparing to file his petition.

William B. Cady, S. Scioto-st, Democratic candidate for mayor, has filed his petition. So has Mayor B. T. Hedges, Republican, seeking his fourth term.

DRYS CONFIDENT OF REFERENDUM

COLUMBUS, June 1.—"Certain success" was predicted here today by J. P. McNaught, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League in the league's battle to force a referendum vote next fall on the Mosier act, providing for a constitutional prohibition repeal convention.

"Already we have more than 150,000 names to petitions asking for the referendum," McNaught asserted. Petitions containing at least 154,700 signatures must be filed by June 22 to assure a referendum.

McNaught said that the rural sections of the state particularly "are coming in strong" and that "surprising support" is being found in the cities.

INDICTMENTS AGAINST L. E. MILLER ATTACKED

Attorneys File Motions to Annul Charges Brought by Grand Jury

TO ARGUE FRIDAY

Wording in Indictments Cited by Lawyers

An effort to annul two indictments against L. E. Miller, Walnut, resigned city service director, was started in common pleas court, Wednesday afternoon, when Leist and Leist, attorneys for Mr. Miller, filed two motions to quash the indictments returned by the May grand jury.

Judge J. W. Adkins said Thursday that arguments on the motions will probably be heard Friday.

Both motions read the same. They claim the indictments do not inform Mr. Miller in what way he was interested in purchase of property alleged in the indictments, and that there are two counts in each indictment found under separate sections of the statutes of Ohio, charging two separate and distinct offenses and are not of the same class of crimes.

FOLLOWED CHARGES

Mr. Miller was indicted after Prosecutor Ray W. Davis investigated charges made by R. B. Beverly, state examiner, that Mr. Miller as service director was personally interested in purchases for the city. He was indicted for violations of sections 12910 and 12912 of the General Code. Under the former section conviction would subject him to one to 10 years in the Ohio penitentiary. It is a felony. Under the other, conviction would result in a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $1,000, or 30 days or not more than six months in the county jail, or both.

Mr. Miller is now free under $700 bond, $500 on the felony indictment and $200 on the misdemeanor indictment.

He has never been arraigned and will not be until the motions to quash have been disposed of.

ONE KILLED IN FIRE, 2 DYING

Boy, 5, Trapped In Flames; Parents of Nine Are Near Death.

MANSFIELD, June 1.— Victor Powell, 5, was burned to death and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Powell, were reported dying today as the result of a fire which destroyed their home seven miles northeast of Mansfield this morning.

Eight other children who were in the house when the fire broke out escaped with minor bruises and burns, except Walter Powell, 22, who was brought to General Hospital here in a serious condition.

The fire broke out when the father, returning home from work with a section gang, poured gasoline in a stove to kindle the flames. A spurting blaze caught the can of gasoline, igniting it and causing an explosion. Powell was covered with flames and the fire began to spread rapidly.

RUSH TO FATHER

Awakened by the blast of the exploding gasoline can, other members of the family rushed to the assistance of Powell and attempted to beat out the flames. Mrs. Powell was seriously burned while fighting the fire.

Raging out of control, the flames finally drove the family outside. Five-year- old Victor Powell, however, was trapped in an upstairs room of the burning house. Efforts were made to reach the child with the aid of a ladder, but they proved unsuccessful as the flames repeatedly drove the rescuers back.

The other children succeeded in fighting their way through the flames to safety. They were taken to the home of neighbors.

Curtis Powell is 58 years old. His wife is 48.

Police Court

CASE DISMISSED

After hearing evidence in the case against Cecil Evans and Harry Jennings, of Columbus, for assault and battery, Prosecuting Attorney Ray W. Davis, requested of Mayor B. T. Hedges that the affidavits be dismissed, Wednesday afternoon.

Both men had been arrested in connection with an alleged free for all fight at the Caldwell residence in Harrison-twp. The men claimed they went to the Caldwell home with a court order for Evans' child and that after knocking on the door they were met with a pot of hot coffee which scalded the left side of Jennings' face. The men admitted to the court that they had struck several of the Caldwells but said that it was necessary to defend themselves.

The outfit is now undergoing conditioning at the Kentucky army camp.

FOSSETT IS FREED IN SLADE MURDER

COLUMBUS, June 1.—The murder of William G. Slade in his home here last January 30, was added to the list of unsolved mysteries today with the acquittal of Fred Fossett, 60-year-old negro, who was accused of the slaying.

Fossett was acquitted by a jury of seven women and five men after two and one-half hours of deliberation and despite the fact that Mrs. Slade, wife of the slain man, had identified the negro as the murderer.

Two Columbus newspaper reporters testified that Mrs. Slade had told them within an hour after the shooting that she thought the slayer was a white man.

CONVICTS FACE DEATH CHARGE

War Veteran Slain In Gun Battle; Bad Lands Hunted Today.

LANSING, Kas., June 1.—Hills and sagebrush of the Oklahoma "bad lands" today concealed the hideout of eleven desperate felons, eight of them killers, who escaped from the Kansas penitentiary, leaving a trial of kidnapings and murder in their flight for freedom.

Police, deputy sheriffs and vigilantes from two states were combing the sage brush area of northeastern Oklahoma in a concerted search for the rendezvous to which the two groups of convicts are believed to have fled. The territory where the search centers has long been a hideaway for bandits and criminals.

Highways and roads throughout the area were being guarded by squads of police who were well-armed and under orders to shoot to kill in an encounter. Authorities in a wide area of Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas and Missouri likewise were prepared to intercept the fugitives in their flight.

VETERAN MURDERED

The murder of Policeman Otto L. Durkee, 42 year old World War veteran, who was shot and killed in Chetopa, Kas., in a gun battle with unidentified assailants was the work of one band of convicts, in the opinion of authorities.

That both detachments of fugitives are well stocked with arms and ammunition was confirmed by the six victims, three of them women, who were kidnaped by the felons and later released.

Warden Kirk Prather and two penitentiary guards who were released near Welch, Okla., fifteen miles from the scene of Durkee's, murder, said the criminals have shotguns, rifles and pistols. Some of the smaller weapons were smuggled into the prison twine mill before the break, but the rifles and guns were snatched from penitentiary guards whom the convicts disarmed while holding Prather hostage.

SOLONS DISCLOSE LISTS OF JUDGES TAKING PAY CUTS

In a report compiled by Reps. William R. Foss of Mercer-co and Rep. E. R. King of Vinton-co of common pleas and appeals court judges who have and who have refused to take voluntary salary reductions, Judge J. W. Adkins is listed as having taken a 10 per cent slash in the county's share of his salary.

The same reduction was ordered the first of the year for all appointive officers, by the county commissioners, but could not be forced upon electives. The Judge, however, is listed as having taken no voluntary reduction in his salary coming from the state.

All the judges of the district court of appeals have refunded parts of their pay, it is reported.

Fifty-nine common pleas judges and seven appelate judges are listed as taking no reduction.

MANY SEEKING EAGLESON JOB; TASK IS FACED

Applications Studied for First Time at Wednesday Meeting

OTHER JOBS OPEN

Re-consideration of School Head Declined

The task of selecting the best available man for the superintendency of Circleville public schools now faces the board of education. The board met Wednesday evening for its first meeting since a vote of the members rejected Supt. J. O. Eagleson and found numerous applications for the position.

Some school men well known here have applied for the appointment while applications have been received from educators from various parts of the state. It is rumored, but unconfirmed, that applications have been received by the board from several Pickaway-co school superintendents.

PLAN CAREFUL STUDY

The board of education plans to carefully scrutinize all applications and to make a thorough investigation before Mr. Eagleson's successor is named.

While many applications have been received for the superintendent's job a larger number are seeking the positions now held by Charles F. Hax, English, dramatics and journalism teacher, and Ralph Hite, commercial teacher, both of whom have resigned.

Two grade school positions must also be filled before the new term, Mrs. Robert Bower and Mrs. Richard Wasson both leaving their schools.

COVERS MORE GROUND

The superintendency of Circleville schools for the 1933-34 term will be a more difficult position than in recent years since the job of grade supervisor held by E. L. Daley has been abolished for economy's sake. The principal, E. I. Gephart, and the new superintendent will handle their work and that of the grade supervisor, too.

It is reported an effort was made, at the Wednesday evening meeting, to have the board reconsider its action in rejecting Mr. Eagleson's application but it failed to gain any headway.

FOUR TO ASK JUSTICE POST

E. C. Friece To Face Heavy Opposition For Job; W. B. Cady Files.

A hot contest over the office of justice of peace for Circleville-twp was looming Thursday with four men already possessing petitions and several others reported preparing to toss their well known fedora's into the ring.

To date, Harry E. Weill, clerk of the board of elections, has issued papers to E. C. Friece, incumbent justice of peace; J. M. Trimble, Oscar C. Root and Clarence Robison. Friece and Trimble have been mentioned before but the names of Root and Robison are new in the race.

A scrap is also in evidence for Circleville-twp constable with Oscar Woeber, incumbent, to be opposed by at least one other man, Floyd Shaw, E. Franklin-st, now preparing to file his petition.

William B. Cady, S. Scioto-st, Democratic candidate for mayor, has filed his petition. So has Mayor B. T. Hedges, Republican, seeking his fourth term.

DRYS CONFIDENT OF REFERENDUM

COLUMBUS, June 1.—"Certain success" was predicted here today by J. P. McNaught, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League in the league's battle to force a referendum vote next fall on the Mosier act, providing for a constitutional prohibition repeal convention.

"Already we have more than 150,000 names to petitions asking for the referendum," McNaught asserted. Petitions containing at least 154,700 signatures must be filed by June 22 to assure a referendum.

McNaught said that the rural sections of the state particularly "are coming in strong" and that "surprising support" is being found in the cities.

INDICTMENTS AGAINST L. E. MILLER ATTACKED

Attorneys File Motions to Annul Charges Brought by Grand Jury

TO ARGUE FRIDAY

Wording in Indictments Cited by Lawyers

An effort to annul two indictments against L. E. Miller, Watt-st, resigned city service director, was started in common pleas court, Wednesday afternoon, when Leist and Leist, attorneys for Mr. Miller, filed two motions to quash the indictments returned by the May grand jury.

Judge J. W. Adkins said Thursday that arguments on the motions will probably be heard Friday.

Both motions read the same. They claim the indictments do not inform Mr. Miller in what way he was interested in purchase of property alleged in the indictments, and that there are two counts in each indictment found under separate sections of the statutes of Ohio, charging two separate and distinct offenses and are not of the same class of crimes.

FOLLOWED CHARGES

Mr. Miller was indicted after Prosecutor Ray W. Davis investigated charges made by R. B. Beverly, state examiner, that Mr. Miller as service director was personally interested in purchases for the city. He was indicted for violations of sections 12910 and 12912 of the General Code. Under the former section conviction would subject him to one to 10 years in the Ohio penitentiary. It is a felony. Under the other, conviction would result in a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $1,000, or 30 days or not more than six months in the county jail, or both.

Mr. Miller is now free under $700 bond, $500 on the felony indictment and $200 on the misdemeanor indictment.

He has never been arraigned and will not be until the motions to quash have been disposed of.

HAWKS TO CROSS COUNTRY AIDED BY ROBOT FLYER

LOS ANGELES, June 1.—With a robot at the controls, Lieut Comdr. Frank Hawks, noted aviator, acting only as navigator, today planned to hop off early tomorrow on a projected non-stop flight to New York.

His route will be north to Pueblo, Colo., Kansas City, St. Louis and Indianapolis.

The robot pilot will fly within two degrees of a set course, Hawks said.

The plane is a low winged monoplane propelled by a 14 cylinder 750-horse power motor and capable of a speed of 260 miles an hour.

ONE KILLED IN FIRE, 2 DYING

Boy, 5, Trapped In Flames; Parents of Nine Are Near Death.

MANSFIELD, June 1.— Victor Powell, 5, was burned to death and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Powell, were reported dying today as the result of a fire which destroyed their home seven miles northeast of Mansfield this morning.

Eight other children who were in the house when the fire broke out escaped with minor bruises and burns, except Walter Powell, 22, who was brought to General Hospital here in a serious condition.

The fire broke out when the father, returning home from work with a section gang, poured gasoline in a stove to kindle the flames. A spurting blaze caught the can of gasoline, igniting it and causing an explosion. Powell was covered with flames and the fire began to spread rapidly.

RUSH TO FATHER

Awakened by the blast of the exploding gasoline can, other members of the family rushed to the assistance of Powell and attempted to beat out the flames. Mrs. Powell was seriously burned while fighting the fire.

Raging out of control, the flames finally drove the family outside. Five-year- old Victor Powell, however, was trapped in an upstairs room of the burning house. Efforts were made to reach the child with the aid of a ladder, but they proved unsuccessful as the flames repeatedly drove the rescuers back.

The other children succeeded in fighting their way through the flames to safety. They were taken to the home of neighbors.

Curtis Powell is 58 years old. His wife is 48.

Police Court

CASE DISMISSED

After hearing evidence in the case against Cecil Evans and Harry Jennings, of Columbus, for assault and battery, Prosecuting Attorney Ray W. Davis, requested of Mayor B. T. Hedges that the affidavits be dismissed, Wednesday afternoon.

Both men had been arrested in connection with an alleged free for all fight at the Caldwell residence in Harrison-twp. The men claimed they went to the Caldwell home with a court order for Evans' child and that after knocking on the door they were met with a pot of hot coffee which scalded the left side of Jennings' face. The men admitted to the court that they had struck several of the Caldwells but said that it was necessary to defend themselves.

BRICKER'S ADVICE SOUGHT BY WHITE

Governor May Repeal Clerk's Extender if Constitutionality Is Questioned.

COLUMBUS, June 1.—Due to vigorous opposition to bills extending the terms of county officials, Governor George White today had asked Attorney General John W. Bricker whether such measures are constitutional.

If the reply is "no," the governor is expected to refuse to sign a bill now on his desk to extend the terms of county clerks from two to four years, and to join in a movement to repeal a bill for county recorders, which he has already signed.

Governor White has already announced he will veto bills extending terms of prosecutors, treasurers, sheriffs, and others, if they are passed, but had indicated he would sign the county clerk bill.

END NEAR FOR SALE TAX PLAN OF GOV. WHITE

Committee Refuses to Vote Bill Onto Floor of House

NEW PLANS STUDIED

Gunsett, Aide Confer on New Solution

COLUMBUS, June 1.—With Governor George White's sales tax apparently breathing its last gasp and the governor smarting from a double defeat by his critics, the legislature today boldly undertook to remove the taxation responsibility from the chief executive's hands and fashion a program of its own design.

By a surprising vote of 15 to 9 at the crisis of a long fight, the House taxation committee late yesterday refused to report out the 2 per cent retail sales tax bill, backbone of the governor's program, even without recommendation. A short time before the House schools committee ordered the governor's "minimum education" bill completely rewritten.

Following the failure of the sales tax in its biggest test, a new crop of taxation programs sprang up like mushrooms.

COMMITTEE CALLED

Senator Daniel J. Gunsett (D), of Van Wert, chairman of the Senate taxation committee, promptly summoned his committee together for an executive session today to seek approval of his plan, based on an income tax and the use of gasoline taxes for relief.

A demand that the excise tax on public utilities be hiked from 2.35 per cent to 3 per cent was pressed by Rep. W. T. Roberts (D), of Bridgeport, while others insisted on enactment of a new "cap tax" on beer, to be borne by brewers.

The sales tax appeared to have been all but killed by yesterday's action, which was so decisive it startled even the bitter enemies of the bill, the leaders of whom had predicted the measure would be reported out. The vote to send the bill to the floor was Yes 9, No 15. A vitriolic attack on the sales tax preceded the roll-call.

Two methods of saving the bill from death appeared possible. By mustering the support of two-thirds of the House membership, or 70 votes, administration leaders can relieve the committee of the bill and bring it to the floor. Or they can rewrite the bill, present it in new form, and compel further consideration.

NEITHER TO SUCCEED

In view of the lop-sided vote yesterday, neither plan seemed likely to meet with success. However, Rep. William M. Goodwin (D), of Hamilton, stand-pat chairman of the House committee, said he would not abandon the fight.

To many legislators it appeared that the failure of the sales tax has doomed the governor's entire program, bringing him his first major defeat from the legislature in two terms.

Sudden hostility to the school bill, which developed swiftly yesterday afternoon, upset previous calculations that the tax bill would be reported out.

Charging that the "minimum education" bill granted dictatorial powers to the state director of education, the schools committee voted 11 to 2 to rewrite the

Recipes From Mrs. Thurn

Dear Friends in Circleville:

In asking for a rarebit recipe some good housekeeper has started something. For the enthusiasts for this delicious dish are as sharply divided as to what constitutes a rarebit as are the chowder enthusiasts of New England about their chowders.

As a rule both types of rarebit enthusiasts call their dish a "rabbit," and as such many cook books designate it. But under either name there still remains a great variety of recipes for its confection. It is an ideal dish for impromptu suppers, as a luncheon main dish, as a bridge luncheon or supper main dish. Two favorite recipes are given here:

One half pound cheese grated; one third to one cup liquid; one fourth teaspoon salt; paprika. The cheese should be a rich one but dry, and sliced thin, broken or grated, the latter insuring the fastest melting. Ale or beer was formerly used by chefs; milk or cream by modern housekeepers. With either the result is delicious. Put all ingredients in a double boiler or chafing dish (over hot water), stir constantly until cheese melts and is smooth. Serve at once on toast or crackers. Must be eaten hot and freshly made.

Nest-Saving Rabbit

One cup grated dry cheese; two-thirds cup cream; two well beaten eggs; one half teaspoon dry mustard; one teaspoon sugar; paprika; two tablespoons butter. Melt the butter in a double boiler or chafing dish then put in cheese, cream, seasoning and melt for five minutes. Then stir in the beaten eggs. Let cook until thoroughly melted and mixed. Serve on crackers at once. Some cooks add one can of tomato soup (unthinned) to this mixture for a delicious tomato rarebit.

Egg Noodles

Yolks of two eggs; one cup of flour; one half teaspoon baking powder; one fourth teaspoon salt. Beat the egg yolks, add the salt, baking powder and enough flour to make a stiff dough. Sprinkle flour on the bread board. On this roll out the dough thin as paper. Sprinkle with flour. Roll up closely and shred with a sharp knife as you would shred cabbage for cold slaw. Spread the shreds out on the floured board and leave sprinkled with flour, for two hours. When ready to cook, have a kettle of boiling water (or soup) and sprinkle the noodles lightly into the liquid. Boil for ten minutes. Skim out and serve as garnish around meat; or leave in the soup and serve.

Apple Strudel

The genuine strudel dough is a job for a chef and not to be attempted in the home kitchen. But a home-made imitation of it which is delicious is made with puff pastry or any rich pie pastry. Prepare enough of such pastry to make the top and bottom crust of a large pie. Spread out the dough after rolling to about one fourth inch thickness. Sprinkle with finely ground almonds, sugar and cracker crumbs.

Pare six tart apples and cut in thin slices. Cover half of the strudel dough with these, sprinkle thickly with sugar and a few raisins which have been washed and soaked to plumpness. Fold over the edge of the dough and roll the apples in; add small dabs of shortening to the unfilled part of the dough, sprinkle it with sugar and roll over the apple roll. Lay in a pan well rubbed with shortening, placing the roll in a coil. Spread with melted shortening and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) until the crust is a golden color. Cut while warm into pieces, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve.

Pork Chops and Rice

Six pork chops; three-fourths cup rice; three tablespoons chopped onion; three tablespoons chopped green pepper; one and one-half teaspoons salt; one-fourth teaspoon pepper; two teaspoons shortening. Trim the bone from the chops, salt and pepper them and roll in flour. Put the fat in the frying pan and brown the chops on both sides. Add the uncooked rice, tomatoes, salt, pepper, onion and green pepper to the chops, cover and cook for one hour.

French Fried Onions

Cut medium sized onions in slices about one-fourth inch thick and separate these into rings. Dip in milk then in flour and fry in deep hot fat, using a frying basket. When brown remove from the fat and place on several thicknesses of paper toweling or paper napkins which are kept hot in a pan in the oven (door left open). Salt and serve. Delicious with hamburger.

Green Peas and Asparagus

Six slices bacon cut in small pieces; two cups seasoned, thin white sauce; one and one-half cups fresh cooked asparagus; one and one-half cups fresh cooked peas; four cups seasoned mashed potatoes. Brown the bacon in a frying pan. Rub a casserole with shortening, lay in alternate layers of asparagus and peas. Add the browned bacon and two tablespoons of the bacon fat to the white sauce and pour over the vegetables. Cover the top with the mashed potatoes and bake for twenty minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees). Serves six.

Orange Tapioca Cream

Four tablespoons instant tapioca; one-fourth teaspoon salt; one and one-third cups boiling water; one-half cup sugar; one cup orange juice; grated rind one-half orange; one-half cup cream to whip. Add the tapioca and salt to the boiling water for twenty minutes, cooking until the tapioca is transparent, stirring frequently. Then add the sugar and orange juice and grated rind. Stir well and let cool. When cool fold in the whipped cream, chill and serve in sherbet glasses.

Chocolate Parfait

One cup sugar, one cup water, whites of three eggs, two ounces or two squares of sweet chocolate, two cups cream to whip, one tablespoon vanilla. Boil the sugar and water to the soft ball stage. Pour slowly over the stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly until cool. Fold in the chocolate which has been melted and cooled, then fold in cream and vanilla. Pour into refrigerator trays and freeze without stirring, or pack in a mold in ice to freeze. Serve in tall glasses with a spoon of whipped cream on top.

Garden News

A number of plants such as cabbage, which were sown early are transplanted into garden beds at this time. As soon as the seedlings get their second or third leaves, they are ready for transplanting and thinning out. Use plenty of water, especially if the Spring has been dry.

At this time sow beets in light soil planting an inch or an inch and a half deep. The two favorites for winter storing are the Detroit Dark Red and the Crimson Globe.

Sow Brussels Sprouts at this time; cut out the crown of the plants after the sprouts have formed; this makes larger and better sprouts. Ask for the Danish Prize variety for delicious ones which will store nicely during the winter.

Cabbage should be sown at this time also for late winter storing; do not sow thickly or very careful thinning out will be necessary later. Good varieties for storing and for salad as well as cooking are Danish Ballhead, Volga, and Savoy.

Carrots Need Deep Soil

For deep soil the Danvers Half Long carrot is recommended by garden authorities. While in a more shallow soil, the shorter carrot such as the Chantenay are more satisfactory. In some sections of the country where Spring is late these should be sown in June or as late as July, for winter storing.

Plant parsnips at this time and turnips if the Spring has been early. Otherwise plant turnips in June; select round yellow and white varieties for good cookery flavors. The White Egg and Amber Globe being favorites although they require later planting as they develop very quickly; if to be used in summer cookery plant now; for winter storing leave until July for planting.

Household Suggestions

To make a light colored apple sauce use apples that yield a light colored jelly rather than a deeper red jelly. Slice the apples thinly, and do not expose them to the air for long before cooking as that will tend to discolor them. Cook them quickly in an uncovered pan. Mash the apples soft almost as soon as they are hot. This will tend to prevent overcooking and discoloration.

Some points of choice in the purchase of eggs have been requested. When buying eggs the points on which to judge your selection should include these: Eggs should be clean, should have a firm full yolk, should not slip in the shell and should average about 2 ounces in weight. When eggs are expensive, buy fresh eggs for table use, but processed or cold storage eggs are satisfactory for cooking purposes.

A muffin that has been over-stirred may become soggy, peaked, tunneled and lop-sided. To make a successful muffin, the conclusion rightly would be avoid over-stirring. A general rule that works better than timing for most people, and for most baking powders used, is to stir wet ingredients into the dry ingredients as fast as possible and to stop stirring the instant the dry ingredients are dampened. This does not mean to stir until all the lumps are out and a smooth batter is obtained, but just until the point of dampening.

Cake for the Bride

The Bride's Cake is a feature of the luncheon given a day or two before the wedding by the mother of the bride. The bride, the bridesmaid and a few other intimate friends are the guests.

The bride's cake occupies the center of the table. It is elaborately white frosted, and contains "fortunes" in the shape of a ring for a wedding, a coin for wealth, a horseshoe for luck, a wishbone for granting the wish of the one who finds it in her portion, and others. These miniature objects are baked into the cake and the element of chance that leads one to discover her fortune is what lends mystery and excitement to the party.

This recipe for a white cake that requires the whites of three eggs fits the purpose:

Bride's Cake

2⅓ C. sifted cake flour
2½ tsp. baking powder
½ C. butter
1½ C. sugar
⅔ C. milk
½ C. water
½ tsp. vanilla
½ tsp. almond ext.
½ tsp. salt
3 egg whites

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Combine milk, water, and flavoring. Add flour to creamed mixture, alternately with liquid, a small amount at a time, and beat after each addition until smooth. Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff, but not dry. Fold gently into cake mixture. Bake in two greased layer pans in a slow oven (300 degrees) for 10 minutes; then increase heat to moderate (350 degrees) and bake 15 minutes longer. For three 10-inch layers, double recipe. Spread with seven minute frosting.

Chocolate Parfait

One cup sugar; one cup water; whites of three eggs; two ounces or two squares of sweet chocolate, two cups cream to whip; one tablespoon vanilla. Boil the sugar and water to the soft ball stage. Pour slowly over the stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly until cool. Fold in the chocolate which has been melted and cooled, then fold in cream and vanilla. Pour into refrigerator trays and freeze without stirring, or pack in a mold in ice to freeze. Serve in tall glasses with a spoon of whipped cream on top.

Garden News

A number of plants such as cabbage, which were sown early are transplanted into garden beds at this time. As soon as the seedlings get their second or third leaves, they are ready for transplanting and thinning out. Use plenty of water, especially if the Spring has been dry.

At this time sow beets in Robs soil planting an inch or an inch and a half deep. The two favorites for winter storing are the Detroit Dark Red and the Crimson Globe.

Sow Brussels Sprouts at this time; cut out the crown of the plants after the sprouts have formed; this makes larger and better sprouts. Ask for the Danish Prize variety for delicious ones which will store nicely during the winter.

Cabbage should be sown at this time also for late winter storing; do not sow thickly or very careful thinning out will be necessary later. Good varieties for storing and for salad as well as cooking are Danish Ballhead, Volga; and Savoy.

Carrots Need Deep Soil

For deep soil the Danvers Half Long carrot is recommended by garden authorities. While in a more shallow soil, the shorter carrot such as the Chantenay are more satisfactory. In some sections of the country where Spring is late these should be sown in June or as late as July, for winter storing.

Plant parsnips at this time and turnips if the Spring has been early. Otherwise plant turnips in June; select round yellow and white varieties for good cookery flavors. The White Egg and Amber Globe being favorites although they require later planting as they develop very quickly; if to be used in summer cookery plant now; for winter storing leave until July for planting.

Household Suggestions

To make a light colored apple sauce use apples that yield a light colored jelly rather than a deeper red jelly. Slice the apples thinly, and do not expose them to the air for long before cooking as that will tend to discolor them. Cook them quickly in an uncovered pan. Mash the apples soft almost as soon as they are hot. This will tend to prevent overcooking and discoloration.

Some points of choice in the purchase of eggs have been requested. When buying eggs the points on which to judge your selection should include these: Eggs should be clean, should have a firm full yolk, should not slip in the shell and should average about 2 ounces in weight. When eggs are expensive, buy fresh eggs for table use, but processed or cold storage eggs are satisfactory for cooking purposes.

A muffin that has been over-stirred may become soggy, peaked, tunneled and lop-sided. To make a successful muffin, the conclusion rightly would be avoid over-stirring. A general rule that works better than timing for most people, and for most baking powders used, is to stir wet ingredients into the dry ingredients as fast as possible and to stop stirring the instant the dry ingredients are dampened. This does not mean to stir until all the lumps are out and a smooth batter is obtained, but just until the point of dampening.

Cake for the Bride

The Bride's Cake is a feature of the luncheon given a day or two before the wedding by the mother of the bride. The bride, the bridesmaid and a few other intimate friends are the guests.

The bride's cake occupies the center of the table. It is elaborately white frosted, and contains "fortunes" in the shape of a ring for a wedding, a coin for wealth, a horseshoe for luck, a wishbone for granting the wish of the one who finds it in her portion, and others. These miniature objects are baked into the cake and the element of chance that leads one to discover her fortune is what lends mystery and excitement to the party.

This recipe for a white cake that requires the whites of three eggs fits the purpose:

Bride's Cake

2⅓ C. sifted cake flour — ⅔ C. water
2¼ tsp. baking powder — ½ tsp. vanilla
½ C. butter — ¼ tsp. almond ext.
1½ C. sugar — ¼ tsp. salt
⅔ C. milk — 5 egg whites

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Combine milk, water, and flavoring. Add flour to creamed mixture, alternately with liquid, a small amount at a time, and beat after each addition until smooth. Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff, but not dry. Fold gently into cake mixture. Bake in two greased layer pans in a slow oven (300 degrees) for 10 minutes; then increase heat to moderate (350 degrees) and bake 15 minutes longer. For three 10-inch layers, double recipe. Spread with seven minute frosting.

The Putterers

THE world's workers are divided into two classes, those who work energetically and effectively, and those who fuss and putter over their tasks, and take an inordinate amount of time. Times like the past year have constituted a temptation leading many who ordinarily are good workers, to become mere putterers.

A putterer might be defined as a slow and dawdling worker who directs the motions of his hands in an aimless and incompetent way, wasting time by feeble and ill directed motions, failing to give due attention to his work, letting his mind wander while the work drags along.

People have often remarked during the past year or two, that a good energetic man could do as much work as several out of the gangs they have seen. Many people seem to fear that if they work hard, they will work themselves out of a job. When men are put to work to pay for the relief money they have received, some of them are so constituted that they do a lot of this puttering.

The putterers have to stop frequently to watch cars or trains go by, or to light their pipes, or see what their neighbors are doing. When men have been out of work for a time, there is a tendency to lose working power, and the task that would seem fairly easy in ordinary times really seems hard.

Normal people hate idleness, and if they once get a job they will put in some big licks to show they appreciate the chance, and are determined to give their money's worth of effort. A time when jobs are scarce and many are idle is a time when the people of Circleville should be thankful for any work they can find, and anxious to do their best at it. That attitude promotes recovery from depression, since it reduces the cost of labor, and encourages folks to start out on new projects.

Thankless Tasks

A GENTLEMAN who served a term on the school board of a certain town, remarked that it was an extremely thankless task. No matter what they did in the effort to please the people, he said, they found half or more of the town against them, complaining and criticizing.

That is one reason why people who are well qualified to manage the affairs of a community, will often refuse to take such offices. They feel they can't be bothered with incessant criticism and unreasonable demands. Of course such officials must expect reasonable and constructive suggestions and criticisms. But faithful service should be given warm appreciation, and when such officials perform their duties well, they should be given hearty praise.

Girl Tramps

THE horde of young men and boys roaming about the country, hitch-hiking, stealing train rides, is said to include a good many girls dressed as boys. What can these little flappers be thinking of, to join this wandering crew? What dreary circumstances led them to forsake the safety of home for this life of peril and perhaps disgrace?

Slack, vicious, inattentative parents probably account for many of them. If the old folks will scrap and quarrel, they can't expect the young people to walk the straight and narrow path. But the independence of youth is an equal factor. It used to be considered that young people were able to go on their own at 21 years of age, but they claim that privilege five years earlier now.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE
by WARWICK DEEPING

CHAPTER FORTY-FIVE

Wolfe was shown into the panelled dining-room at "Pardons" two hours after Threadgold had left in a huff. A log fire burnt in the open fireplace, throwing a warm light on the Jacobean wainscoting that had not been Victorianised with paint or canvas and wallpaper. The inlay work and the carving over the fireplace were very fine. Wolfe was standing and examining it and warming himself at the fire when Mrs. Brandon entered.

She was wearing a dress of some tawny stuff that glowed like yellow metal in the brown light of the room. Her eyes looked straight at Wolfe, a little haughtily. Her pallor and her reserve were natural to her. Strangers were kept at a distance. Moreover, she wished Wolfe to understand that her sending for him was the result of sheer necessity.

"My son has broken his leg. Dr. Threadgold could do nothing with him. I sent for you."

"I see."

"It is an emergency."

She was brought to pause by the expression on Wolfe's face. It was as though he had said: "I understand you perfectly. But do not qualify your condescension. I am not the man to suffer it."

She said curtly: "Will you come upstairs? I must tell you the boy is very nervous."

Wolfe followed her in silence, like a physician summoned from a hostile camp to minister chivalrously to an enemy who lay ill.

Once in the room he walked straight to the bed, and held out a hand. Aubrey Brandon eyed him sulkily, a wild animal ready to bite.

"This is a piece of bad luck, sir. Too much daring, eh? They ought to have had a good run, too, out at Cheston. Plenty of room for a gallop."

It was the attitude of a man towards a man, frank, and unrestrained. After a moment's hesitation, Aubrey Brandon's hand came out. Wolfe gripped it gently, and sat down beside the bed.

"Trying a stiff jump, was that it?"

"Yes——"

"You rascal! That's where you dashing fellows show your pluck. I have had a broken leg myself, under a cart wheel in London. It makes a man grit his teeth, especially when a clumsy beggar of a policeman gets hold of you. No, I shan't hurt you much. It's just what I don't want to do."

The boy's face brightened perceptibly.

"You know—it does hurt."

"Haven't I felt it myself?"

"It takes some pluck not to yell."

"You're not going to yell."

He played up to the boy's vanity and quickened it.

"We shall have to take these gaiters and boots off, and those riding-breeches. And when we have got you nicely trussed up, we'll put you to bed. You see I shall just cut off the buttons, slit the laces and the seams, and pick you out like an egg out of a shell."

Aubrey's eyelids flickered.

"Do you think I might have a little brandy?"

"Brandy? No harm at all."

"I'm going to stick it—you see!"

"Of course you will. I would always rather look after a fellow who can ride."

Wolfe brought his bag to the bed, and sitting down on the edge, he began to bring out bandages, wool, and splints with casual ostentation. He chose a scalpel from a case and showed it to Master Brandon.

"A good edge on that! You won't feel me taking off these boots and gaiters. I'll bet you sixpence you don't shout."

Ursula Brandon slipped round and sat down by her son's head.

"Have you seen the article in this paper?" Mrs. Brandon asked Wolfe.

A shallow swagger had come into the boy's eyes. Wolfe had flicked the right mood. They were men of the world who understood each other. None of your "Poor little man, did 'ums then——"

Ursula Brandon, holding one of Aubrey's hands, sat and watched Wolfe at work. He was cheery, reposeful, unflurried, chatting while he worked, and keeping a watch upon the boy's face. His deftness and his gentleness were remarkable. Once or twice Ursula Brandon glanced at the man's profile. She had a peculiar sense of being dominated, interested against her will. The article in the "Wannington Clarion" recurred to her. This was the man whose destiny it would be to utter such truths. The word truth forced itself forward. It was uncompromising, refusing to be represented by some urbane and euphuistical interpreter.

In half an hour Wolfe had Aubrey Brandon splinted up, undressed, and put to bed. There had been a moment's whimpering and some faltering of the boy's fortitude over the setting of the bone. Wolfe had handed the youngster one of his leather gloves.

"Bite into that, old chap. I know it will hurt for a moment, but we shall soon be through."

And Aubrey had borne the pain with patience that had surprised his mother.

She felt grateful to Wolfe, and impressed by the way he had handled the boy. Wolfe was packing up his bag, and talking to Aubrey.

"You went through like a Trojan. Now I want you to keep quite still, you know. The leg may hurt you a bit, and splints feel uncomfortable, but you'll grin and bear it. It won't last long."

He crossed over and shook hands.

"I say, do you remember stopping my pony in Bridge Street?"

Wolfe smiled.

"I do."

"You'll come again to-morrow?"

"If I'm needed—of course I will."

"I won't have old Threadgold."

"There, there, Aubrey, dear; don't talk so much. You'll tire yourself."

She was thinking as she descended the stairs, very conscious of the man behind her. He had not spoken since they had left the boy's room. Silence—even to a silent person—may be problematical and alluring. Ursula Brandon felt a sudden desire to touch the real inwardness of this man.

"Supposing there should be much pain?"

"I can send you something to keep him easy. We don't want the splints torn off. But I understand that Threadgold will resume the responsibility."

She was surprised at her own answer. It escaped like some headstrong impulse.

"No."

"Then you wish me to come again?"

"If you will."

"But with regard to Dr. Threadgold?"

"He washed his hands of the case. The boy would not obey him."

The copy of the "Wannington Clarion" lay on the broad oak window-seat, a patch of whiteness in the sunlight.

"Have you seen the article in this paper?"

She crossed the room, picked up the "Wannington Clarion," and held it out to Wolfe. She watched his face as he took it from her.

"I don't know who sent it to me. Such things make one angry for the moment."

"I don't know who sent you the paper. I have read the article, because I wrote it."

He met her eyes.

"I had guessed that."

She was neither angry nor contemptuous. Her face had a white, serious gravity, and there was no mistrust in her eyes.

"I was angry at first. But there was a reasonableness, an absence of vulgarity——"

"I assure you——"

"Yes, it was that one distrusts such a paper as this. It is so contemptible that—well—I had to get rid of prejudices."

She looked at him with frank earnestness.

"I know I may ask you——"

"Anything you please."

"These things, they are true?"

"As far as I know truth."

"Thank you."

He began to pull on his gloves.

"Mrs. Brandon, I can assure you of my sincerity. I am one of those men who want things altered. I am not a squabbling politician."

"No."

He went out, feeling vaguely astonished.

Causes of Chorea Still A Mystery to Science

Disease, Known as "St. Vitus' Dance", Is Thought to Be Associated With Rheumatic Fever—Symptoms and Treatment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

RECENTLY I VISITED a home in which a small boy was the center of household attraction. He was a good looking youngster, well developed, but very pale and restless. The child was irritable and gave every evidence of chorea, yet his parents did not dream he was suffering from any ailment.

Dr. Copeland

"Chorea", or "Saint Vitus' Dance", as it is more frequently called, is a common disease of childhood. It usually afflicts children between the fifth and fifteenth years, girls being more susceptible to this ailment than boys. It is more common among the poor than the rich.

The Symptoms

Chorea is a serious disease if neglected. Unfortunately, the affliction is often overlooked in children because there is no complaint of pain. The disease is to be suspected when a child appears to fidget and to be clumsy in his movements. As the disease progresses, suspicion is further aroused if the child exhibits difficulty in picking up objects and in walking.

Let me assure you that this disease is neither contagious nor hereditary. But early recognition of chorea in children is of great importance. When the disease is recognized in its early stages and proper measures are taken, the child's health can be completely restored. Likewise the dreaded complications, such as heart disease, can be prevented.

Like rheumatic fever, involvement of the heart is a feared complication of chorea. Neglected chorea and heart disease may result in a permanent defect which will interfere with the future health of the child.

Restless, Irritable Children

Though the actual cause of chorea has never been discovered, it is probable that it is due to a germ or to bacteria. For this reason it is important that diseased tonsils, adenoids, sinuses and defective teeth be removed.

The child should be kept in bed. This is sometimes a difficult ordeal, but it is now definitely known that great benefit is derived from prolonged rest. The sufferer from chorea should be kept in bed for at least two to three months. Meals should be served to the child in bed and every effort should be made to avoid exciting and stimulating games. Bear in mind that mental and physical excitement is harmful to these little patients.

Of course the victim of chorea should be under the personal supervision of a physician. He and only he is in a position to prescribe the necessary medicine, the proper diet, care and attention.

Do not disregard signs of restlessness and irritability in a child. Often the child suffering from chorea is backward in his school work, careless, and has periods of loss of memory. If you suspect chorea consult with your doctor.

Within recent years chorea has been associated with rheumatic fever. It frequently follows an attack of acute rheumatic fever. Much research work is being conducted all over the world in an effort to solve this affliction. Until the causes of rheumatic fever and chorea are discovered, prevention is impossible. Proper care lessens the seriousness of the disease.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

PEOPLE think they got to have a lot of things for comfort nowadays. And when a fellow gets used to sitting on a chair with springs in it, it is mighty hard for him to go back to sitting on a bench without any back to it.

Anyhow, some summer boarders were roughing it at a farm house up in Maine this summer. It was a large looking house, but the boarders found fault with a lot of things before they had been there more than an hour.

Pretty soon the lady come to the old farmer and says to him, "Don't we have a private bath, Mr. Brown?"

"Why, yes, lady, that's the only kind of baths anybody's allowed to take in this house. You jest wait till the other guests gets through with the tub, and then you gets in and shuts the door. No public bathin' allowed."

The Housewife's Question Box

Question: I have some spots on my walls made by children's greasy fingers. How can these be removed?

Answer: Many times grease spots can be removed by covering the spot with a layer of Fuller's earth. Brush the powder off after it has remained on the spot for about 24 hours. The Fuller's earth absorbs the grease.

A hot iron and blotter may be used instead of the powder. Hold a clean blotter on the spot and move a warm flat iron over it. Repeat the process using a clean blotter if necessary.

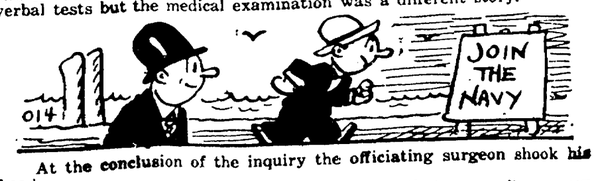
Some Buoy!

By IRVIN S. COBB

WHEN hostilities were threatening with Germany back in 1917, a lusty patriot strode with a business-like air into a recruiting office and announced that he desired to enlist in the army. He passed the verbal tests but the medical examination was a different story.



At the conclusion of the inquiry the officiating surgeon shook his head.

"My boy," he said, "I'm sorry to tell you that we can't use you in the army. You have a floating kidney."

"That's a pretty howdy-do!" exclaimed the applicant. "What's a fellow going to do that wants to serve his country and is barred out just because he happens to have a floating kidney?"

"Well," said the doctor, "they might let you into the Navy."

The Putterers

THE world's workers are divided into two classes, those who work energetically and effectively, and those who fuss and putter over their tasks, and take an inordinate amount of time. Times like the past year have constituted a temptation leading many who ordinarily are good workers, to become mere putterers.

A putterer might be defined as a slow and dawdling worker who directs the motions of his hands in an aimless and incompetent way, wasting time by feeble and ill directed motions, failing to give due attention to his work, letting his mind wander while the work drags along.

People have often remarked during the past year or two, that a good energetic man could do as much work as several out of the gangs they have seen. Many people seem to fear that if they work hard, they will work themselves out of a job. When men are put to work to pay for the relief money they have received, some of them are so constituted that they do a lot of this puttering.

The putterers have to stop frequently to watch cars or trains go by, or to light their pipes, or see what their neighbors are doing. When men have been out of work for a time, there is a tendency to lose working power, and the task that would seem fairly easy in ordinary times really seems hard.

Normal people hate idleness, and if they once get a job they will put in some big licks to show they appreciate the chance, and are determined to give their money's worth of effort. A time when jobs are scarce and many are idle is a time when the people of Circleville should be thankful for any work they can find, and anxious to do their best at it. That attitude promotes recovery from depression, since it reduces the cost of labor, and encourages folks to start out on new projects.

Thankless Tasks

A GENTLEMAN who served a term on the school board of a certain town, remarked that it was an extremely thankless task. No matter what they did in the effort to please the people, he said, they found half or more of the town against them, complaining and criticizing.

That is one reason why people who are well qualified to manage the affairs of a community, will often refuse to take such offices. They feel they can't be bothered with incessant criticism and unreasonable demands. Of course such officials must expect reasonable and constructive suggestions and criticisms. But faithful service should be given warm appreciation, and when such officials perform their duties well, they should be given hearty praise.

Girl Tramps

THE horde of young men and boys roaming about the country, hitch-hiking, stealing train rides, is said to include a good many girls dressed as boys. What can these little flappers be thinking of, to join this wandering crew? What dreary circumstances led them to forsake the safety of home for this life of peril and perhaps disgrace?

Slack, vicious, inattentative parents probably account for many of them. If the old folks will scrap and quarrel, they can't expect the young people to walk the straight and narrow path. But the independence of youth is an equal factor. It used to be considered that young people were able to go on their own at 21 years of age, but they claim that privilege five years earlier now.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE

by WARWICK DEEPING

CHAPTER FORTY-FIVE

Wolfe was shown into the panelled dining-room at "Pardons" two hours after Threadgold had left in a huff. A log fire burnt in the open fireplace, throwing a warm light on the Jacobean wainscoting that had not been Victorianised with paint or canvas and wallpaper. The inlay work and the carving over the fireplace were very fine. Wolfe was standing and examining it and warming himself at the fire when Mrs. Brandon entered.

She was wearing a dress of some tawny stuff that glowed like yellow metal in the brown light of the room. Her eyes looked straight at Wolfe, a little haughtily. Her pallor and her reserve were natural to her. Strangers were kept at a distance. Moreover, she wished Wolfe to understand that her sending for him was the result of sheer necessity.

"My son has broken his leg. Dr. Threadgold could do nothing with him. I sent for you."

"I see."

"It is an emergency."

She was brought to pause by the expression on Wolfe's face. It was as though he had said: "I understand you perfectly. But do not qualify your condescension. I am not the man to suffer it."

She said curtly: "Will you come upstairs? I must tell you the boy is very nervous."

Wolfe followed her in silence, like a physician summoned from a hostile camp to minister chivalrously to an enemy who lay ill.

Once in the room he walked straight to the bed, and held out a hand. Aubrey Brandon eyed him sulkily, a wild animal ready to bite.

"This is a piece of bad luck, sir. Too much daring, eh? They ought to have had a good run, too, out at Cheston. Plenty of room for a gallop."

It was the attitude of a man towards a man, frank, and unrestrained. After a moment's hesitation, Aubrey Brandon's hand came out. Wolfe gripped it gently, and sat down beside the bed.

"Trying a stiff jump, was that it?"

"Yes——"

"You rascal! That's where you dashing fellows show your pluck. I have had a broken leg myself, under a cart wheel in London. It makes a man grit his teeth, especially when a clumsy beggar of a policeman gets hold of you. No, I shan't hurt you much. It's just what I don't want to do."

The boy's face brightened perceptibly.

"You know—it does hurt."

"Haven't I felt it myself?"

"It takes some pluck not to yell."

"You're not going to yell."

He played up to the boy's vanity and quickened it.

"We shall have to take these gaiters and boots off, and those riding-breeches. And when we have got you nicely trussed up, we'll put you to bed. You see I shall just cut off the buttons, slit the laces and the seams, and pick you out like an egg out of a shell."

Aubrey's eyelids flickered.

"Do you think I might have a little brandy?"

"Brandy? No harm at all."

"I'm going to stick it—you see!"

"Of course you will. I would always rather look after a fellow who can ride."

Wolfe brought his bag to the bed, and sitting down on the edge, he began to bring out bandages, wool, and splints with casual ostentation. He chose a scalpel from a case and showed it to Master Brandon.

"A good edge on that! You won't feel me taking off these boots and gaiters. I'll bet you sixpence you don't shout."

Ursula Brandon slipped round and sat down by her son's head.

"Have you seen the article in this paper?" Mrs. Brandon asked Wolfe.

A shallow swagger had come into the boy's eyes. Wolfe had flicked the right mood. They were men of the world who understood each other. None of your "Poor little man, did 'ums then——"

Ursula Brandon, holding one of Aubrey's hands, sat and watched Wolfe at work. He was cheery, reposeful, unflurried, chatting while he worked, and keeping a watch upon the boy's face. His deftness and his gentleness were remarkable. Once or twice Ursula Brandon glanced at the man's profile. She had a peculiar sense of being dominated, interested against her will. The article in the "Wannington Clarion" recurred to her. This was the man whose destiny it would be to utter such truths. The word truth forced itself forward. It was uncompromising, refusing to be represented by some urbane and euphuistical interpreter.

In half an hour Wolfe had Aubrey Brandon splinted up, undressed, and put to bed. There had been a moment's whimpering and some faltering of the boy's fortitude over the setting of the bone. Wolfe had handed the youngster one of his leather gloves.

"Bite into that, old chap. I know it will hurt for a moment, but we shall soon be through."

And Aubrey had borne the pain with patience that had surprised his mother.

She felt grateful to Wolfe, and impressed by the way he had handled the boy. Wolfe was packing up his bag, and talking to Aubrey.

"You went through like a Trojan. Now I want you to keep quite still, you know. The leg may hurt you a bit, and splints feel uncomfortable, but you'll grin and bear it. It won't last long."

He crossed over and shook hands.

"I say, do you remember stopping my pony in Bridge Street?"

Wolfe smiled.

"I do."

"You'll come again to-morrow?"

"If I'm needed—of course I will."

"I won't have old Threadgold."

"There, there, Aubrey, dear; don't talk so much. You'll tire yourself."

She was thinking as she descended the stairs, very conscious of the man behind her. He had not spoken since they had left the boy's room. Silence—even to a silent person—may be problematical and alluring. Ursula Brandon felt a sudden desire to touch the real inwardness of this man.

"Supposing there should be much pain?"

"I can send you something to keep him easy. We don't want the splints torn off. But I understand that Threadgold will resume the responsibility."

She was surprised at her own answer. It escaped like some headstrong impulse.

"No."

"Then you wish me to come again?"

"If you will."

"But with regard to Dr. Threadgold?"

"He washed his hands of the case. The boy would not obey him."

The copy of the "Wannington Clarion" lay on the broad oak window-seat, a patch of whiteness in the sunlight.

"Have you seen the article in this paper?"

She crossed the room, picked up the "Wannington Clarion," and held it out to Wolfe. She watched his face as he took it from her.

"I don't know who sent it to me. Such things make one angry for the moment."

"I don't know who sent you the paper. I have read the article, because I wrote it."

He met her eyes.

"I had guessed that."

She was neither angry nor contemptuous. Her face had a white, serious gravity, and there was no mistrust in her eyes.

"I was angry at first. But there was a reasonableness, an absence of vulgarity——"

"I assure you——"

"Yes, it was that one distrusts such a paper as this. It is so contemptible that—well—I had to get rid of prejudices."

She looked at him with frank earnestness.

"I know I may ask you——"

"Anything you please."

"These things, they are true?"

"As far as I know truth."

"Thank you."

He began to pull on his gloves.

"Mrs. Brandon, I can assure you of my sincerity. I am one of those men who want things altered. I am not a squabbling politician."

"No."

He went out, feeling vaguely astonished.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

PEOPLE think they got to have a lot of things for comfort nowadays. And when a fellow gets used to sitting on a chair with springs in it, it is mighty hard for him to go back to sitting on a bench without any back to it.

Anyhow, some summer boarders were roughing it at a farm house up in Maine this summer. It was a large looking house, but the boarders found fault with a lot of things before they had been there more than an hour.

Pretty soon the lady come to the old farmer and says to him, "Don't we have a private bath, Mr. Brown?"

"Why, yes, lady, that's the only kind of baths anybody's allowed to take in this house. You jest wait till the other guests gets through with the tub, and then you gets in and shuts the door. No public bathin' allowed."

The Housewife's Question Box

Question: I have some spots on my walls made by children's greasy fingers. How can these be removed?

Answer: Many times grease spots can be removed by covering the spot with a layer of Fuller's earth. Brush the powder off after it has remained on the spot for about 24 hours. The Fuller's earth absorbs the grease.

A hot iron and blotter may be used instead of the powder. Hold a clean blotter on the spot and move a warm flat iron over it. Repeat the process using a clean blotter if necessary.

Causes of Chorea Still A Mystery to Science

Disease, Known as "St. Vitus' Dance", Is Thought to Be Associated With Rheumatic Fever—Symptoms and Treatment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

RECENTLY I VISITED a home in which a small boy was the center of household attraction. He was a good looking youngster, well developed, but very pale and restless. The child was irritable and gave every evidence of chorea, yet his parents did not dream he was suffering from any ailment.

"Chorea", or "Saint Vitus' Dance", as it is more frequently called, is a common disease of childhood. It usually afflicts children between the fifth and fifteenth years, girls being more susceptible to this ailment than boys. It is more common among the poor than the rich.

The Symptoms

Chorea is a serious disease if neglected. Unfortunately, the affliction is often overlooked in children because there is no complaint of pain. The disease is to be suspected when a child appears to fidget and to be clumsy in his movements. As the disease progresses, suspicion is further aroused if the child exhibits difficulty in picking up objects and in walking.

Let me assure you that this disease is neither contagious nor hereditary. But early recognition of chorea in children is of great importance. When the disease is recognized in its early stages and proper measures are taken, the child's health can be completely restored. Likewise the dreaded complications, such as heart disease, can be prevented.

Like rheumatic fever, involvement of the heart is a feared complication of chorea. Neglected chorea and heart disease may result in a permanent defect which will interfere with the future health of the child.

Restless, Irritable Children

Though the actual cause of chorea has never been discovered, it is probable that it is due to a germ or to bacteria. For this reason it is important that diseased tonsils, adenoids, sinuses and defective teeth be removed.

The child should be kept in bed. This is sometimes a difficult ordeal, but it is now definitely known that great benefit is derived from prolonged rest. The sufferer from chorea should be kept in bed for at least two to three months. Meals should be served to the child in bed and every effort should be made to avoid exciting and stimulating games. Bear in mind that mental and physical excitement is harmful to these little patients.

Of course the victim of chorea should be under the personal supervision of a physician. He and only he is in a position to prescribe the necessary medicine, the proper diet, care and attention.

Do not disregard signs of restlessness and irritability in a child. Often the child suffering from chorea is backward in his school work, careless, and has periods of loss of memory. If you suspect chorea consult with your doctor.

Within recent years chorea has been associated with rheumatic fever. It frequently follows an attack of acute rheumatic fever. Much research work is being conducted all over the world in an effort to solve this affliction. Until the causes of rheumatic fever and chorea are discovered, prevention is impossible. Proper care lessens the seriousness of the disease.

BUSINESS SHOWING BIG IMPROVEMENT

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Both the heavy and consumer industries through many sections of the United States, business is showing a decided improvement, the commerce department announced today on the basis of reports from 22 important trade associations.

Production, employment, payrolls and sales were going forward for the first time since the depression started. It was regarded as specifically significant that the automobile, steel and machine tool associations were optimistic.

The department asked the associations for facts and conservative opinions rather than optimistic views.

The national association of credit men representing approximately 20,000 manufacturers, wholesalers and bankers, reported considerable improvement in collections in 18 states. Better business generally was seen in many sections. The association emphasized that business was being placed by houses previously practically out of the market. There has been some buying for inventory purposes, although replacements are far short of normal stocks.

COTTON IMPROVES

George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile institute declared that employment and production in the cotton textile industry in May compared favorably with conditions prevailing in 1928.

Automobile production in April was 22 per cent higher than the same month last year, according to the National Chamber of Commerce. Competition may keep prices at present levels even though the rise in raw materials and expansion of employment prevent profitable operation.

The American Paint and Varnish Manufacturers association said employment was about half normal but rapidly increasing.

More than the usual upturn in the autumn was anticipated in the motion picture business. Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors said the present dullness in this industry was not especially discouraging because it is highly sensitive to all business development.

Former Secretary of Commerce Lamont, who is head of the American Iron and Steel institute, said the demand is fairly widespread with the automobile industry the largest buyer. Most steel executives are fairly optimistic he said.

CONTROL AIDS OIL

Betterment in the oil industry will become immediately apparent upon rational control of crude oil production without which further distress is inevitable. Axtell J. Byles, president of the American Petroleum institute wired.

There has been a definite upturn in department store business, according to a wire from the national retail dry goods association. Employment was said to be improved by the transfer of an appreciable number of part time workers to a full time basis.

A better feeling among farmers has developed as a result of price increases, the national association of farm equipment manufacturers reported.

measure. Even Rep. O. E. Brenneman (D), of Morrow-co, who introduced the bill for the governor condemned it. The bill was attacked also by Rep. Elza D. Limes (D) of Hardin-co, chairman of the legislature's special schools committee.

Rep. James Roberts (R), of Canton, said emphatically he was voting against the sales tax because the school bill, a companion measure, was not what he expected. Rep. Frank H. Ward (D), of Woodsfield, called the school bill "hellish" and added he "almost had apoplexy" when he saw it.

Principal protests against the school bill were aimed at the state department's power to compel consolidations. The bill, which was written by Director of Education B. O. Skinner, provided for grants from the state of $17 and $29 respectively for each elementary and high school pupil, under a system similar to the Mort school reorganization plan.

High schools of under 90 pupils would be consolidated with larger schools under Dr. Skinner's proposal.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

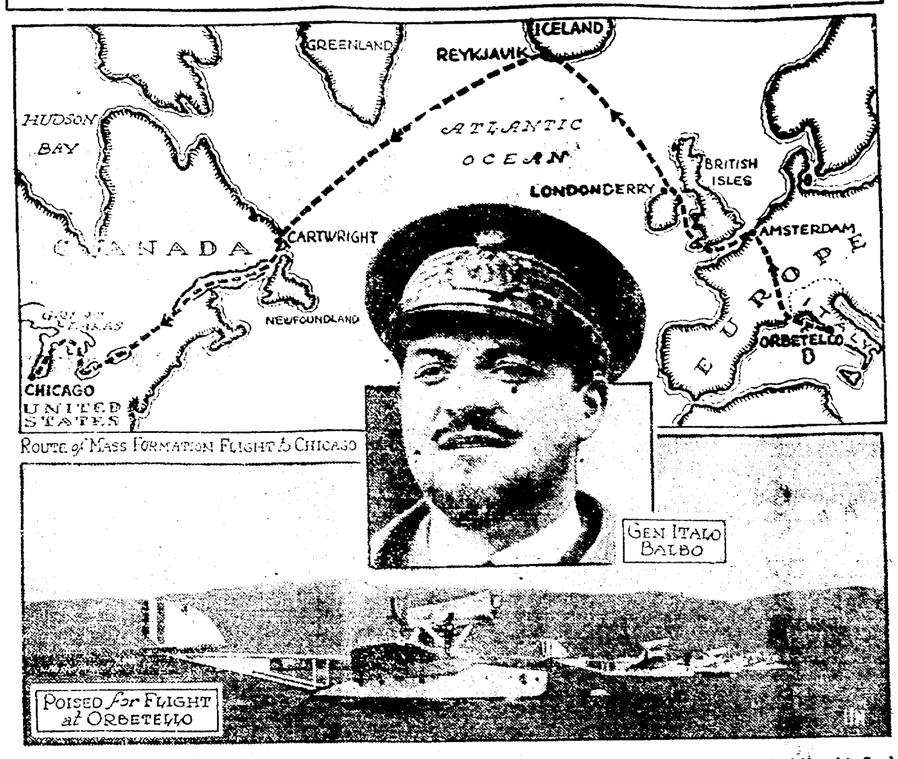
Italy's Air Armada Poised for Chicago Hop



With men and machines tuned to concert pitch, General Italo Balbo, Italian Air Minister, is holding his flock of twenty-four seaplanes and their crews of nearly one hundred men in readiness at Orbetello, Italy, for the start of the great mass formation flight to Chicago. The flight, probably the greatest venture in aviation history, is Premier Benito Mussolini's tribute to the Century of Progress Exposition. The starting date for the take-off was originally set for May 24, but weather conditions necessitated a postponement. Now, owing to ice conditions at the northern section of the route, the flight probably will be delayed until June 15 at the earliest. The route will take the roaring squadron from Orbetello to Amsterdam, Holland, thence to Londonderry, Ireland, whence it will make a sea hop to Reykjavik, Iceland. Refueling here, the armada will thunder on to Cartwright, Labrador, thence to Quebec, Canada, and down the home stretch formed by the Great Lakes to Chicago.

Inclusion of Communistic Saint in Giant Fresco for Capitalistic Temple Caused Dismissal of Famous Mexican Artist Before Completion of Masterpiece.

DIEGO RIVERA JOHN D ROCKEFELLER JR. NELSON ROCKEFELLER

The face of the late Nicholai Lenin, founder of the Soviet Union, may cause reverent genuflections in Russia, but in Rockefeller Center, New York, one of the world's greatest monuments to capitalistic achievement, it is just an eyesore. At least that is the stand taken by the Rockefeller family in the new art controversy that rages following the dismissal of Diego Rivera, world-famous mural painter, who was engaged in painting a 67-foot fresco for the R. C. A. Building, one of the main units of Rockefeller Center, which is more often called Radio City. Rivera's mural, part of which depicts Lenin joining the hands of a white soldier, a white worker and a Negro, made the Rockefellers see red in the true sense of the word. Apparently no compromise was possible, although Rivera says he offered to include the figure of Abraham Lincoln in another panel, by way of balancing things, and the Mexican artist is out of the job. Rivera's dismissal came upon orders from Nelson Rockefeller, son of John D. Jr., apparently with his father's approval. The artist and his helpers had been working on the fresco for six weeks and had one more week to go before it would be completed.

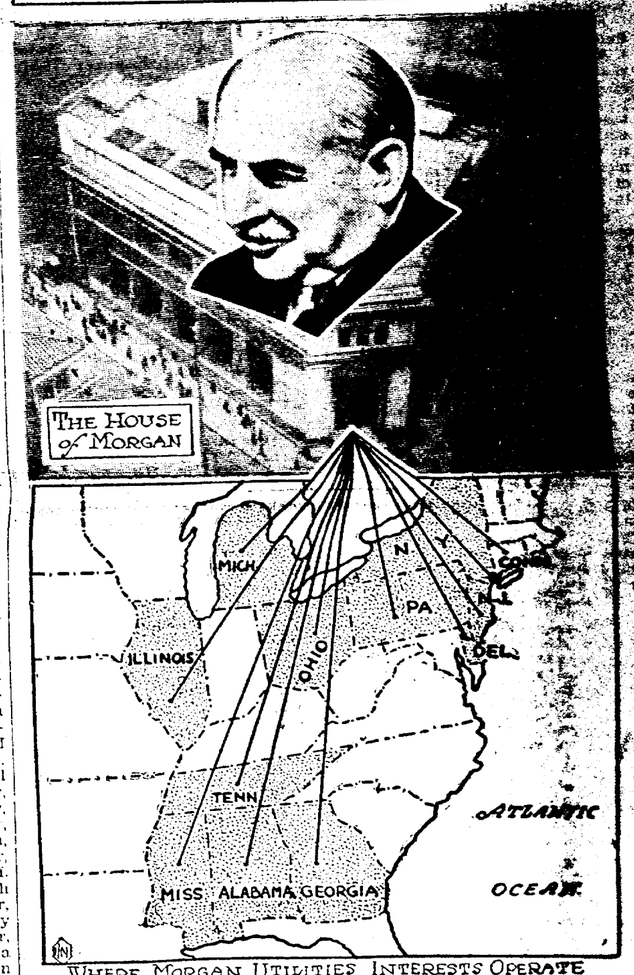
House of Morgan Dominates Far-Flung Utilities Empire



WHERE MORGAN UTILITIES INTERESTS OPERATE

Under the skillful cross examination of Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate investigating committee, J. P. Morgan and those of his partners who have thus far testified at the Senate hearing have made revelations that places the House of Morgan, not only at the head of international finance, but also in control of a vast network of the nation's utilities. From the unobtrusive Morgan headquarters, at the corner of Broad and Wall Streets, New York, tentacles of the gigantic financial octopus reach into eleven States, where Morgan and his partners, by a series of interlocking directorates, control utilities and railroads. It is estimated that the Morgan influence in the utilities field had a direct influence on the lives of some 55,272,000 inhabitants of the States.

BUSINESS SHOWING BIG IMPROVEMENT

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Both the heavy and consumer industries through many sections of the United States, business is showing a decided improvement, the commerce department announced today on the basis of reports from 22 important trade associations.

Production, employment, payrolls and sales were going forward for the first time since the depression started. It was regarded as specifically significant that the automobile, steel and machine tool associations were optimistic.

The department asked the associations for facts and conservative opinions rather than optimistic views.

The national association of credit men representing approximately 20,000 manufacturers, wholesalers and bankers, reported considerable improvement in collections in 18 states. Better business generally was seen in many sections. The association emphasized that business was being placed by houses previously practically out of the market. There has been some buying for inventory purposes, although replacements are far short of normal stocks.

COTTON IMPROVES

George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile institute declared that employment and production in the cotton textile industry in May compared favorably with conditions prevailing in 1928.

Automobile production in April was 22 per cent higher than the same month last year, according to the National Chamber of Cmmerce. Competition may keep prices at present levels even though the rise in raw materials and expansion of employment prevent profitable operation.

The American Paint and Varnish Manufacturers association said employment was about half normal but rapidly increasing.

More than the usual upturn in the autumn was anticipated in the motion picture business. Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors said the present dullness in this industry was not especially discouraging because it is highly sensitive to all business developments.

Former Secretary of Commerce Lamont, who is head of the American Iron and Steel institute, said the demand is fairly widespread with the automobile industry the largest buyer. Most steel executives are fairly optimistic he said.

CONTROL AIDS OIL

Betterment in the oil industry will become immediately apparent upon rational control of crude oil production without which further distress is inevitable, Axtell J. Byles, president of the American Petroleum institute wired.

There has been a definite upturn in department store business, according to a wire from the national retail dry goods association. Employment was said to be improved by the transfer of an appreciable number of part time workers to a full time basis.

A better feeling among farmers has developed as a result of price increases, the national association of farm equipment manufacturers reported.

measure. Even Rep. O. E. Brenneman (D), of Morrow-co, who introduced the bill for the governor condemned it. The bill was attacked also by Rep. Elza D. Limes (D) of Hardin-co, chairman of the legislature's special schools committee.

Rep. James Roberts (R), of Canton, said emphatically he was voting against the sales tax because the school bill, a companion measure, was not what he expected. Rep. Frank H. Ward (D), of Woodsfield, called the school bill "hellish" and added he "almost had apoplexy" when he saw it.

Principal protests against the school bill were aimed at the state department's power to compel consolidations. The bill, which was written by Director of Education B. O. Skinner, provided for grants from the state of $17 and $29 respectively for each elementary and high school pupil, under a system similar to the Mort school reorganization plan.

High schools of under 90 pupils would be consolidated with larger schools under Dr. Skinner's proposal.

Spotting a Winner?

To see the very latest in feminine fashions visit a race track. Here is Mrs. Harold E. Talbot, noted society leader, pictured at Belmont Park, N. Y., in a sporty ensemble composed of a white glove silk dress, trimmed with polka dot material, with gloves, scarf and hat band matching.

tim of errors, hits and terrible umpires' decisions Tuesday, will go to the firing line Thursday afternoon probably opposed by Clyde Hatter, capable port-sider.

Minneapolis Millers continue their onslaught defeating St. Paul by a 6-1 score, remaining on the heels of the Red Birds. Rube Benton went the whole way giving eight hits. Newkirk and Garland divided the mound tasks for the Apostles.

Bill Shores, late of the New York Giants, gave Milwaukee but three hits to win for Kansas City, 7-0. Caldwell was the losing pitcher.

GROVE LEADING PITCHING CHOICE

CHICAGO, June.—Lefty Grove, the Philadelphia hurler, was still the popular favorite today to do the pitching honors for an American league all-star team which will oppose a similar National league aggregation here July 6 in a world's fair attraction.

Grove is leading his closest rival, Gomez of New York, by more than 10,000 votes.

Balloting of the fans has been almost unanimous in favor of pitting Connie Mack and John McGraw, the two most famous managers, against each other in the inter-league duel of the stars.

Simmons, Ruth and Averill were leading the outfielder candidates. Bill Dickey was a favorite to do the catching and Joe Cronin was the choice at short. Lou Gehrig held a 13,000 vote lead for first base, Gehringer was the favorite at second and Jimmy Dykes at third.

CARDINALS GAIN

St. Louis Club Shows Best Record In Either League During May.

NEW YORK, June 1.—As the result of Pittsburgh's 5 to 1 defeat by Chicago yesterday while St. Louis was idle, the Pirates and Cardinals were practically tied for first place in the National league today—which is exactly the way the bookmakers figure the pennant scramble.

The latest odds rate the two leaders equal favorites at 2 to 1 with 3 to 1 quoted against the New York Giants and 5 to 1 against the Cubs. St. Louis gained five full games on the Bucs during May by winning 19 games and losing only 7, the best record in either league. Pittsburgh won 14 and lost 12. The Giants did almost as well, winning 13 and losing 12, while the Cubs, with 16 victories and 12 losses, were second only to the Cards in the senior circuit.

New York's Yankees are an odds-on choice at 2 to 5 to repeat in the American league, with Washington second choice at 4 to 1 and the Athletics third at 6 to 1. The Yanks gained on Washington in May by winning 14 and losing 9 while the Nats won 14 and lost 12, but the A's outstripped both, winning 15 games and losing only six.

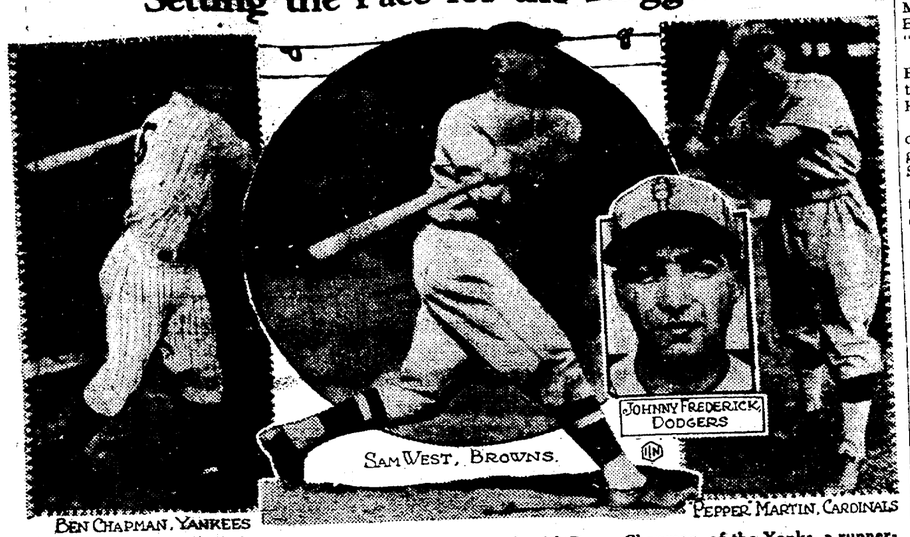
HEILMAN TO JOIN SANDLOT OUTFIT

DETROIT, June 1.—Harry Heilmann, former outfielder for the Detroit Tigers and the Cincinnati Reds, today had signed to play with a local sandlot team.

Heilmann, one of the greatest right handed hitters in major league history, was American league batting champion five times in his 14 years of service with the Detroit club.

He was released by Cincinnati three years ago.

Setting the Pace for the Sluggers



The leading batters of a year ago seem to have slipped back to the ruck and this quartet is battling for first honors in the big leagues. Sam West, of the St. Louis Browns and Johnny Hodapp, of the Red Sox are neck to neck with Benny Chapman, of the Yanks, a runner-up. "Pepper" Martin, Cards, and "Pie" Traynor of the Pirates lead the National League with Johnny Frederick, Dodger's outfielder, right on their heels.

The Mauler Can Still Take It

There's still a lot of wallop left in the Old Massa, Jack Dempsey, former champion of the world, who is shown in a spirited exhibition bout with Max Schmeling, also an ex-champ, at the latter's training camp at Swananoa, N. J. Schmeling and Max Baer are to meet shortly under Dempsey's promotorial banner.

Bill Lee Bests Weinert, Wins

With Big Bill Lee on the hill the Columbus Red Birds made an abrupt about-face Wednesday afternoon to defeat the Louisville Colonels in a thrilling mound duel, 1 to 0. Phil Weinert, clever southpaw and a former member of the Red Bird organization, opposed Lee.

Weinert was touched fatally only once. Swamp Baby Charlie Wilson smacked a double down the left field line in the fourth session then, after Art Shires had popped out, Nick Cullop smacked a long triple to the score-board.

Sensational support by Riggs, Rothrock and Slade carried Lee through the nine innings unscored upon.

The big right-hander scattered four hits while Weinert was touched seven times. Neither team committed an error and the game was quite different from the Memorial Day fiasco with Indianapolis.

Jim Lindsey, who was the victim of errors, hits and terrible umpires' decisions Tuesday, will go to the firing line Thursday afternoon probably opposed by Clyde Hatter, capable port-sider.

Minneapolis Millers continue their onslaught defeating St. Paul by a 6-1 score, remaining on the heels of the Red Birds. Rube Benton went the whole way giving eight hits. Newkirk and Garland divided the mound tasks for the Apostles.

Bill Shores, late of the New York Giants, gave Milwaukee but three hits to win for Kansas City, 7-0. Caldwell was the losing pitcher.

Spotting a Winner?

Victor for Pitt

Winning by a wide margin over Blazing Ben Eastman, who was third, William Keller, of Pittsburgh, is shown breasting the tape in the 800-meter heat at the I. C. 4A games in Cambridge, Mass. Keller's time for the distance was 1:55.2. Burns of Manhattan was second.

Setting the Pace for the Sluggers

The leading batters of a year ago seem to have slipped back to the ruck and this quartet is battling for first honors in the big leagues. Sam West, of the St. Louis Browns and Johnny Hodapp, of the Red Sox are neck to neck with Benny Chapman, of the Yanks, a runner-up. "Pepper" Martin, Cards, and "Pie" Traynor of the Pirates lead the National League with Johnny Frederick, Dodger's outfielder, right on their heels.

The Mauler Can Still Take It

There's still a lot of wallop left in the Old Massa, Jack Dempsey, former champion of the world, who is shown in a spirited exhibition bout with Max Schmeling, also an ex-champ, at the latter's training camp at Swananoa, N. J. Schmeling and Max Baer are to meet shortly under Dempsey's promotorial banner.

GROVE LEADING PITCHING CHOICE

CHICAGO, June.—Lefty Grove, the Philadelphia hurler, was still the popular favorite today to do the pitching honors for an American league all-star team which will oppose a similar National league aggregation here July 6 in a world's fair attraction.

Grove is leading his closest rival, Gomez of New York, by more than 10,000 votes.

Balloting of the fans has been almost unanimous in favor of pitting Connie Mack and John McGraw, the two most famous managers, against each other in the inter-league duel of the stars.

Simmons, Ruth and Averill were leading the outfielder candidates. Bill Dickey was a favorite to do the catching and Joe Cronin was the choice at short. Lou Gehrig held a 13,000 vote lead for first base, Gehringer was the favorite at second and Jimmy Dykes at third.

CARDINALS GAIN

St. Louis Club Shows Best Record In Either League During May.

NEW YORK, June 1.—As the result of Pittsburgh's 5 to 1 defeat by Chicago yesterday while St. Louis was idle, the Pirates and Cardinals were practically tied for first place in the National league today—which is exactly the way the bookmakers figure the pennant scramble.

The latest odds rate the two leaders equal favorites at 2 to 1 with 3 to 1 quoted against the New York Giants and 5 to 1 against the Cubs. St. Louis gained five full games on the Bucs during May by winning 19 games and losing only 7, the best record in either league. Pittsburgh won 14 and lost 12. The Giants did almost as well, winning 13 and losing 12, while the Cubs, with 16 victories and 12 losses, were second only to the Cards in the senior circuit.

New York's Yankees are an odds-on choice at 2 to 5 to repeat in the American league, with Washington second choice at 4 to 1 and the Athletics third at 6 to 1. The Yanks gained on Washington in May by winning 14 and losing 9 while the Nats won 14 and lost 12, but the A's outstripped both, winning 15 games and losing only six.

HEILMAN TO JOIN SANDLOT OUTFIT

DETROIT, June 1.—Harry Heilmann, former outfielder for the Detroit Tigers and the Cincinnati Reds, today had signed to play with a local sandlot team.

Heilmann, one of the greatest right handed hitters in major league history, was American league batting champion five times in his 14 years of service with the Detroit club.

He was released by Cincinnati three years ago.

Touchstone

"That is the touchstone of authority in this matter"—the touchstone of righteousness—the touchstone of honesty—there are innumerable allusions in which the word "touchstone" is used to indicate a criterion or a test which measures certain qualities. In these phrases the reference is to a literal touchstone which is a black siliceous stone used to test the purity of gold and silver by the streak left on the stone when rubbed by the metal. The earliest recorded use of the term in the figurative way in which it is used above was in Ascham's "The Schoolmaster," dating 1570.

Touchstone

"That is the touchstone of authority in this matter"—the touchstone of righteousness—the touchstone of honesty—there are innumerable allusions in which the word "touchstone" is used to indicate a criterion or a test which measures certain qualities. In these phrases the reference is to a literal touchstone which is a black siliceous stone used to test the purity of gold and silver by the streak left on the stone when rubbed by the metal. The earliest recorded use of the term in the figurative way in which it is used above was in Ascham's "The Schoolmaster," dating 1570.

Girl to Woman

THE young woman who suffers from monthly pains, or the woman who suffers from weakening drains, should take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Miss Minnie Wacker, Route 9, Valley Pike, Dayton, says: "When I was developing into womanhood I would have terrible bearing pains, followed by very dizzy sick-headaches, was weak and tired and so irritable I did not care to have any one talk to me. I also became very pale. Immediately after I started taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I was greatly relieved of this suffering. I have had no more trouble, am in the best of health." Sold by druggists.
